

Nick Lenehan

Nick Lenehan graduated with a BA in Psychology from Saint Mary's University in 2010 and with a JD from Dalhousie University Law School in 2013. He has over a decade of experience as a high performance gymnastics coach, a nationally accredited official, and an NCCP learning facilitator. He was also the president of Gymnastics Nova Scotia from 2013 to 2018 and was on the Board of Gymnastics Canada from 2018 to 2022.

He has more recently completed certificates in Diversity & Inclusion from Cornell University and Agile Project Management from McGill University.

Prior to his current role at Sport Nova Scotia as the Participation Lead for Equity, Diversity & Inclusion, he was the Head Men's Coach at Titans Gymnastics & Trampoline Club in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia. Additionally, he has experience in legal research, project management, policy development, safe sport and EDI, with a specific lens toward 2SLGBTQ+ inclusion in sport.

Nick's experience in the Canadian sports system at many different levels has lead him to be an advocate for progress and change when it comes to creating safer, more equitable, diverse and inclusive sports organizations.

Nick currently lives in the Halifax area and is an avid runner and hiker, enjoying the lakes and coastal trails in Nova Scotia.
